Game Story

This game is about a guy named Jason.

Jason had a pet frog named Fred. One day, Fred decided he had enough of being locked up in a fish bowl and made a dash for the door. As fate would have it, Jason was there when all this happened and he gave chase. Once outside, Jason was totally amazed to find Fred running toward a huge radioactive chest. As soon as Fred touched it, he grew to an enormous size, and the radioactive chest fell into the earth along with Fred. Jason tried to reach for Fred but fell into the hole along with him.

When Fred landed, he found himself alone next to a huge armoured vehicle. This was not just any vehicle, but one designed for the ultimate challenge against the radioactive mutants living under the Earth's crust. These mutants, created from escaped radioactive waste, are controlled by the Plutonium Boss.

Your mission is to fight your way and destroy the Plutonium Boss before he destroys you.

Along the way to your final encounter are many warlords of the underground you must destroy.

How to Play

Blaster Master has eight levels in all. To complete some levels, you must return to lower levels — we've given you a map to help find your way (located on pages 10-15).

Blaster Master is a one player game. No scoring is provided. Your mission is to survive and destroy the mutants.

This game has two modes. One mode in which you are inside your vehicle, and a second in which you must venture out of your vehicle. Small doorways will indicate where you must leave your vehicle and fight on your own.

In the Menu screen (described on page 8), you can monitor and choose weapons earned for use against the mutants. To stay alive, you need to maintain your power gauge shown on screen at all times. You can increase power by catching power balls. If you perish from lack of power, you can continue. To do this, use the select button to choose continue or end, then press start. However, you only have five chances to continue per game.
